the final word on safety

Here's what you need to know

If there's a fire, pull the alarm.

You'll find red manual fire alarms throughout the ship. If a fire is detected, you'll hear a buzzer or your stateroom phone will ring. And if it's nearby, you'll be told to head to your muster station. Do what your crew says; they're trying to keep you safe.

If you hear the general emergency alarm, go to your muster station.

You'll locate your muster station during your safety briefing. It's where you go in an emergency, so it's important to remember. (But if you forget, you can always find it marked on the back of your stateroom door.)

How do you know what the general emergency alarm is? Listen for seven short blasts followed by one long blast on the ship's whistle and alarms. If you hear the general emergency alarm:

- Go quickly and calmly to your stateroom.
- Grab your life jacket, warm clothing, head covering, comfortable footwear and any medication you need.
- Go to your muster station and get instructions from officers there or over the loudspeaker.

If you might need help reaching your muster station, let your stateroom steward or Guest Services know today so they can plan ahead.

"Man overboard!"

That's what you shout if you see someone fall into the water. Then immediately throw a life buoy or anything else that will float to mark the spot, and tell a crew member what happened.

A word (or two) of warning:

WARNING: The following products contain or are chemicals known to the state of California to cause cancer: diesel engine exhaust, tobacco smoke and silica.

WARNING: The following product contains or is a chemical known to the state of California to cause birth defects or other reproductive harm: carbon monoxide.

Please don't tamper with the water sprinklers in the ceiling! Don't hang anything on them or attach anything to them. That can cause the sprinklers to go off, which can mess up your stuff and ours. FYI Princess is not responsible for property damaged as a result.

Tolerance for crime? Zero.

You can refer to this section on your stateroom TV for the full policy, but the short answer is we don't tolerate crime. We staff our ships with a certified security officer and security team as well as medical staff trained in how to handle criminal and other security incidents.

The ocean is our home and we protect it.

Preserving our seas isn't just an obligation, it's an honor, and we're committed to doing all we can to keep these waters safe. We work closely with organizations that oversee cruise environmental practices to meet the regulations of the International Maritime Organization (IMO) and are committed to reducing single-use packaging, plastics and service items, such as plastic straws and cups, as well as paper, to minimize solid waste.

It should go without saying, but we'll say it anyway: Throwing any item overboard is strictly forbidden.

What's our smoking policy?

Smoking is only allowed in clearly designated areas.

We are staying atop health and safety protocols in our continuing effort to minimize the risk of exposure to COVID-19, which may also impact our voyages and offerings, including amenities and itineraries.
